PENINSULA | weddings

Gone are the days when Wedding Photography was about posed studio recreations of key moments during a ceremony. Portrait Photography has also changed from the parents in the back and kids in the front smiling at the little birdie studio set up. People today are looking for photographs that recreate the atmosphere of their Wedding, or in the case of Portrait Photography capture their own and their children's personalities. It is the aim of Photographer Michaela George of Gallery One to take photos that do just that. With a background in the arts, her style of photography is creative, natural and candid. Her Weddings are a mix of photojournalistic photographs that have a human interest and reflect a Bride and Grooms memories of the day, as well as natural and artistically posed images. Believing that whether it's a Portrait of a newborn baby or a Wedding Party of 150, Wedding and Portrait Photography should capture an important and memorable moment in time that will last in your hearts and mind.

"I want to say how incredibly impressed, grateful and satisfied we are with the photographs you took at the Wedding. We can't stop looking at them. They are truly divine." "Thank-you for your professionalism, dedication, warmth and direction. We are so glad you were part of the day and we proudly show everyone your wonderful pictures. We will heartily recommend you".
