

There is something special about the way kids respond to each other at Minimbah.

We have our own special character: a small community with laughter, excitement and an occasional touch of magic.

Like our Senior Campus, we are coeducational. It's been that way for over 150 years. We see it as natural, the most normal and healthy setting for learning to occur.

Minimbah classes are kept small, to ensure that students receive the personal attention they need to thrive.

Our students grow with a strong social conscience. They are taught to respect themselves, others, and the environment: values which remain with them through to adulthood.

Of course the best way to understand what makes Minimbah special, is to experience it for yourself.
