The Capt'n hangs up his hat for Snooze

A re-branded Snooze is on a mission to improve the style and quality of sleep. Capt'n Snooze is undergoing a major bedroom renovation and is changing its name to Snooze as part of a national overhaul, incorporating a fresh new look that reflects its position as a world class leader in sleep and bedroom style.

Capt'n Snooze stores will start to adopt the new name and chic look featuring a warm chocolate brown colour palette leaving behind the 'Capt'n' component of the name, the cartoon-like cap and the red and black logo.

Marketing Managing for Snooze, Drew Warren-Smith, said that change showcases Snooze as a first-class lifestyle store, not just a bedding retailer.

"We have always told our customers that it's important to ensure that your bedroom changes as you do, and as one of Australia's biggest bedroom stores this is exactly what we're doing," Mr Warren-Smith said.

"The new name and branding reflects what has been going on inside the store for years – our excellent product range, our staff's holistic approach to bedroom solutions and our understanding of how much our customers love and value their sleep."

"Beds are just one reason why people visit our stores. Many gain inspiration to develop their own bedroom style and love to add finishing touches to their décor seasonally by purchasing linen, lamps, cushions and throws."

"For too long bedding companies have been harping on how cheap mattresses do the job when it comes to comfortable bedroom living. We think they have missed the point – it's really about quality sleep, the emotional connection you have with your bedroom and offering solutions that deliver on both these things."

Most importantly, Snooze caters for all budgets making stylish bedroom living affordable for everyone.

In addition to selling exclusive lines such as Design Mobel and Madison, Snooze has also brought cutting edge technologies to their stores including Body Mapping by Kingsdown which tailors sleeping solutions to the individual and TemptraKON®, which adjusts the temperature according to your own body heat.
